Dear FFA Members,

"What do you want to be when you grow up?" I can clearly remember my first day of freshman year and the dreaded freshman conference. I walked into the stuffy English classroom and sat across from three intimidating teachers. When they asked me what I wanted to be, I wasn't sure how to answer.

It was not until I joined FFA that I could confidently answer the question "What do you want to be when you grow up?" As part of the largest student led organization in the nation, I learned real life skills such as reasoning, leading a meeting, reaching compromises, holding an intelligent conversation, and public speaking. I knew these skills would take me farther than the quadratic formula ever could. Not only did I admire these skills, I also looked up to people who exemplified them. The first person that comes to mind is my agriculture instructor; she has taught me more life lessons that I ever thought possible. She prepares her students for a life where academics are only a small portion of the world. She did something that changed my life and the lives of many others simply by believing in us and always continuing to push us out of our comfort zones. She was one of the first people to be truly honest with me and helped me turn weaknesses into strength.

Today, I have transformed from that nervous, indecisive freshman into a strong leader that has a confident answer to "What do you want to be when you grow up?". I was able to confidently tell those teachers that I want to become an agriculture instructor. I don't just want to teach, I wanted to make a positive impact on the next generation of doctors, politicians, scientists and agriculturists. I hope that "I can exert an influence in my home and community that will stand solid for my part in that inspiring task." Next time you're asked, "What do you want to do when you grow up?" remember it doesn't have to be an occupation, you can simply aim to be a leader, an inspiration, to serve others or to make a true difference in the lives of others.

I believe in the future of agriculture, and I believe in the future of YOU, Oregon FFA. It is with uncontainable excitement and big dreams that I announce my candidacy to the 2019-2020 Oregon FFA State Officer Team. Oregon FFA has given me a home and a family who have made me into the person I am today. I look forward to seeing you all in Redmond for the 91st Oregon FFA State Convention!

Joyfully,
