Oregon FFA,

Inside the holding pen, clean, slick sheared lambs line up along the fence. In the final moments before entering the ring, helping hands rush to apply the final touches that will make the lamb glisten and shine when he catches the light. All the sheep standing in the shavings look the exact same: black head, slick white bodies with black bellbottoms. The only thing that separates the Grand Champion from any other is what makes them unique. With all of the wool gone, all the optical illusions disappear allowing us to see only the truest version of the lamb.

Similar to getting a lamb ready for the ring, it's important to remember that FFA members shouldn't have to wait until show day to express their truest colors. Through my time in FFA, I have gained so much confidence, but I had to find it outside the jacket as well. Today, I have the opportunity to help members find their personal confidence, the same kind that we get when we have pride in our chapter, district, and state organizations. Oregon FFA, the time that we carry ourselves with the utmost confidence and pride is upon us.

Just like a lamb, taking his wool off doesn't change who he is, so we can't let taking the jacket off diminish our confidence either. Let's live every day as if we are about to walk into a show ring. All FFA members look the exact same: blue jackets and white shirts with black bottoms. The only thing that separates the Grand Champion from any other is what makes them unique. With the utmost excitement, I announce my candidacy for the 2023-2024 Oregon FFA State Officer Team. As we anticipate the countdown of the 95th State Convention, I am excited to offer a helping hand to FFA members as they let their personalities glisten and shine. I encourage you to find your own confidence, pride, and what will make you the Grand Champion.

Sincerely,

Austin Evans
Redmond FFA Treasurer
